C. E. Morris Mansion

The Historic C.E. Morris Mansion, built in 1895, is a beautifully preserved Romanesque Revival estate set along East Broad Street in Olde Town East district. Rich in architectural character, the home has been carefully restored over time and incorporates select historic elements reclaimed from the former Indianola United Methodist Church on 17th Avenue and Summit. The building displays distinct elements of the Queen Anne style in its irregular massing, corner turret, and tall stepped chimneys. Its textured masonry appearance is enhanced by the use of stone trim, cut stone lintels and sills, and richly carved stone details such as column capitals, brackets, and pilaster bases and capitals. The property was added to the National Register of Historic Places in 1986 and the Columbus Register of Historic Properties in 1988, reflecting its architectural and historical significance.

A gated entry leads to a private drive extending from East Broad Street to East Capital Street, offering both privacy and presence. Entry into the property is through electric gates at both the front and back. This mansion is complemented with a large stone front porch, terracotta carvings, poured foundation for a garage or carriage house, several outdoor seating areas, and a tree lined yard with fencing for complete privacy.

This distinguished residence features thirteen rooms total with seven bedrooms, two full baths, and three half baths, complemented by grand living spaces and timeless details throughout. Highlights include custom French doors, handmade limestone walls, transom window openers, a walk-up lower-level exterior entry, and generous storage. The formal dining room comfortably accommodates large gatherings and showcases classic furnishings that enhance the home's historic charm.

A rare opportunity to own a piece of Columbus history, the C.E. Morris Mansion offers unmatched character, privacy, and presence in the heart of Columbus.

Olde Town East is one of Columbus' most architecturally rich and historically significant neighborhoods. Olde Towne East offers a rare blend of preserved Victorian grandeur, vibrant culture, and walkable city living. Located just minutes from Downtown Columbus, this distinguished district is celebrated for its tree-lined streets, restored mansions, and strong sense of community.

Originally developed in the late 1800s and early 1900s, Olde Towne East quickly became home to many of Columbus' most prominent families, earning a reputation for its grand residences and elegant streetscapes. Today, the neighborhood remains one of the largest collections of historic homes in Ohio, showcasing a diverse range of architectural styles including Queen Anne, Italianate, Second Empire, and Victorian designs.

Residents and visitors are drawn to the area for its unique combination of historic charm and modern convenience. Carefully restored homes sit alongside locally owned cafés, restaurants, art galleries, and boutique shops that give the neighborhood its creative, welcoming energy. The community is known for its strong neighborhood pride and active civic involvement through the Olde Towne East Neighborhood Association (OTENA), which helps preserve the district's architectural integrity and vibrant character.

Olde Towne East is ideally positioned near some of Columbus' most beloved destinations. Just minutes away, Franklin Park Conservatory and Botanical Gardens offers year-round exhibitions, botanical collections, and cultural programming within a beautifully restored historic greenhouse and surrounding gardens. The neighborhood also provides quick access to Downtown Columbus, the Discovery District, and major highways, making it both scenic and highly convenient for city living. Adding to its unique appeal, the C.E. Morris Mansion holds a special place in one of the city's most celebrated traditions. It is the very first home runners pass during the annual Columbus Marathon, giving the property a distinctive and memorable presence on race day each year.

Beyond its architecture and location, Olde Towne East has become one of Columbus' most sought-after historic neighborhoods due to ongoing restoration and revitalization. Many of its grand homes have been thoughtfully preserved or renovated, maintaining original craftsmanship while adapting to modern living. This balance of heritage and renewal continues to attract homeowners, investors, and preservation enthusiasts alike.

With its historic significance, striking architecture, and close proximity to Downtown Columbus, Olde Towne East remains one of the city's most distinctive and desirable neighborhoods — a place where history, character, and community come together.
